In recognition of College Football's sesquicentennial season, the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference is proud to recognize a group of individuals who have been distinguished as The PSAC's 150 Contributors.

With various league and on-campus celebrations planned for the upcoming season, nominees were comprised of representatives from each current member institution. Those in consideration were identified by each institution as individuals who had made significant contributions to college football.

To determine the formation of the final 150, guidelines were put in place to have representation from each submitting institution. A committee comprised of seven former sports information directors then made selections to finalize the PSAC's 150 Contributors.

The PSAC is honored to present this group as representatives of the countless student-athletes, coaches, administrators and other contributors to the 150 years of college football.
